Managing from the Middle

Do you ever feel like you are caught between desires (of staff) and directions (of leadership)? Do you ever sense a tug-of-war between the person that you report to and the people that you are assigned to lead? If you can relate, you are managing from the middle. Being successful as a middle manager requires flexibility, sensitivity, firmness and so much more. Without these, you are destined for failure, but this doesn't have to be your plight. There are ways to reduce the pull!

Value Statements

Middle managers will leave this series with tools to:

- Maximize 360-degree influence
- Balance leading, following, and collaborating
- Effectively manage up
- Incorporate self-care into daily practices

What's Included

- Three live 90-min sessions
- Series handouts
- Access to recordings and content for 6 months
- Personalized Professional Growth Certificate

Recommended Audience:

Those that are responsible for providing leadership but also under a leader as well. (i.e., middle management, supervisors, coordinators or similar positions)

Format Option(s)

- Online Meeting
- On-site Professional Development

Online Cost: $195

NAME	EMAIL ADDRESS	TEXT #	TITLE/POSITION